ABSTRACT

A study reflects on the Multidimensional Human Problems in India. Even after, India reaches to celebrate 73rd Indian Independence; however, India is far away from the view of genuine and absolute freedom. It is still suffering from Poverty, Inequality, Displacement, Public Transportation, Sanitation, Waste Management, Pollution, Easy Access to Quality Education, Electricity, Safety of Women, Access to Clean Drinking Water, Illiteracy, Corruption, Crimes against Dalit and what not. Even though, The Indian Constitution made mandate with rhythmic bells of egalitarian justice, along with other fundamental props. Moreover, the content of the preamble of the Constitution affirmed that the basic objectives are to secure to all its citizens, Social Justice, Economic Justice, Political Justice etc. also provides Directive Principles of the State Policy for the welfare state. Hence, the liability arises of the Government to make-out absolute welfare policies or schemes for the poor or oppressed people of Dalits. Now, it has been pointed out, that the economic policies of the Indian Government, which are largely influenced by the spirit of Capitalism and Globalization. It is pertinent to note that India has become one of the fastest-growing developing economies since 1990. Besides, it is presumed that in 2035, India will be the third-largest economy of the world after the US and China. However, benefit confines only to ten to fifteen per cent of people, the rest of ninety per cent of Indian citizens suffer from inequality, poverty, displacement etc. It is alarming that there would be an explosion of poverty inequality, and displacement, etc. in 2035. It is an agitating factor across the nation on this outlook. It reflects very badly against the poor and oppressed Dalits, disobedience against the Indian Constitution and abuse of human rights. It is a strongly expressive confrontation against the Government Policies and Schemes. The author has stressed upon an urgent need to change the economic Policies and Schemes of the Government to eliminate the human problems like poverty inequality, displacement etc. widening gaps and rising inequalities effect among the people, upholding the Ideology of the Constitution and make a shield for protecting human rights.

Keywords: Constitution, Social Justice, Economic Justice, Political Justice, Inequality Poverty, Displacement.
